GAMBLE and FERGUSON,
Beg leave to inform the Public,

THAT they continue to carry on the Factorage Business (as the usual commissions) for the sale of the country produce; and as they have the charge of General Gadsden's Wharf, and all his stores, they flatter themselves, from the abundance of shipping, when trade is brisk, and the convenience of storage, when it is not, that they are possessed of every requisite for managing their business for the advantage of their employers.——They appeal to the candour of those gentlemen who favoured them with the sale of their crops last season, whether they have not settled and paid them for all, two months ago, except one account, under three hundred pounds, not called for.

N. B. They have for sale good new rice, by the single barrel (for cash only) below the market price.

The non-exportation of provisions (for there has not been a barrel smuggled from Gadsden's wharf, has obliged us to purchase a considerable quantity of rice as well to keep our boat employed, as to retail it by single barrels.

CHARLES-TOWN, Sept. 9.

Address to Congress, by his Excellency the Sieur Girard, Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States of North-America, on the 6th of August, 1778

GENTLEMEN,

THE Connection formed by the King my maſter, with the United States of North-America, is ſo agreeable to him, that he could no longer delay ſending me to reſide among you for the purpoſe of cementing it.

It will give his Majeſty great ſatisfaction to learn, that the ſentiments which have ſhone forth on this occaſion juſtify that confidence with which he has been inſpired by the zeal and character of the deputies from the United States to France, the wiſdom and fortitude which have directed the reſolutions of Congreſs, and the courage and perſeverance of the people they repreſent. A confidence which forms the baſis of that truly amicable and diſintereſted ſyſtem on which he hath treated with the United States.

It is not his Majeſty's fault, that the engagements he hath entered into did not eſtabliſh your independence and repoſe, without the further effuſion of blood, and without aggravating the calamities of mankind, whoſe happineſs it is his higheſt ambition to promote and ſecure. But ſince the hoſtile meaſures and deſigns of the common enemy, have given to engagements purely eventual an immediate, poſitive, permanent, and indiſſoluble force, it is the opinion of the King my maſter, that the allies ſhould turn their whole attention to fulfil thoſe engagements in the manner moſt uſeful to the common cauſe, and beſt calculated to obtain that peace which is the object of the alliance. It is upon this principle his Majeſty hath haſtened to ſend you a powerful aſſiſtance, which you owe only to his friendſhip, the ſincere regard he has for every thing which relates to the advantage of the United States, and to his deſire of contributing, with efficacy, to eſtabliſh your repoſe and proſperity upon an honourable and ſolid foundation: And further, it is his expectation, that the principles which may be adopted by the reſpective governments will tend to ſtrengthen thoſe bonds of union which have originated in the mutual intereſt of the two nations.

The principal object of my inſtructions is to connect the intereſts of France with thoſe of the United States. I flatter myſelf, Gentlemen, that my paſt conduct in the affairs which concern them, hath already convinced you of the determination I feel to endeavour to obey my inſtructions in ſuch manner as to deſerve the confidence of Congreſs, the friendſhip of its members, and the eſteem of the citizens of America. GIRARD.

The ANSWER of CONGRESS.

SIR,

THE treaties between his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty and the United States of America, ſo fully demonſtrate his wiſdom and magnanimity, as to command the reverence of all nations.

The virtuous citizens of America in particular, can never forget his beneficent attention to their violated rights, nor ceaſe to acknowledge the hand of a gracious Providence in raiſing them up ſo powerful and illuſtrious a friend.

It is the hope and opinion of Congreſs, that the confidence his Majeſty repoſes in the firmneſs of theſe States will receive additional ſtrength from every day's experience.

This Aſſembly are convinced, Sir, that had it reſted ſolely with the moſt Chriſtian King, not only the independence of theſe States would have been univerſally acknowledged, but their tranquility fully eſtabliſhed.

We lament that luſt of domination, which gave birth to the preſent war, and hath prolonged and extended the miſeries of mankind.

We ardently wiſh to ſheath the ſword, and ſpare the further effuſion of human blood: But, we are determined by every means in our power, to fulfil thoſe eventual engagements which have acquired poſitive and permanent force from the hoſtile deſigns and meaſures of the common enemy.

Congreſs have reaſon to believe, that the aſſiſtance ſo wiſely and generouſly ſent will bring Great-Britain to a ſenſe of juſtice and moderation, promote the common intereſts of France and America, and ſecure peace and tranquility on the moſt firm and honourable foundation. ——— Neither can it be doubted, that thoſe who adminiſter the powers of government within the ſeveral States of this union, will cement that connection with the ſubjects of France, the beneficial effects of which have already been ſo ſenſibly felt.

Sir, from the experience we have had of your exertions to promote the true intereſts of our country, as well as of your own, it is with the higheſt ſatisfaction Congreſs receives, as the firſt miniſter from his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty, a Gentleman whoſe paſt conduct affords a happy preſage, that he will merit the confidence of this body, the friendſhip of its members, and the eſteem of the citizens of America.

In Congreſs,

Aug. 6. 1778. HENRY LAURENS, Preſident.

The only advices that we can rely on, received by the laſt courier from Philadelphia, who left that city the 8th of Auguſt, are, That General Waſhington having croſſed the North-River, with his whole army, without the leaſt accident, was encamped in the front of the White Plains; and that the Count d'Eſtaing's ſquadron was gone on an expedition againſt Rhode-Iſland, in which it was not doubted he would ſucceed.

When the courier came away, the following reports prevailed, viz.

That a fire had happened in the city of New York on the 2d of Auguſt, which had conſumed upwards of 200 houſes, amongſt them ſeveral that were full of King's ſtores, and alſo five ſtore ſhips with their lading.

That Admiral Biron with 4 ſhips of war and the Cork fleet, were on the coaſt—that the Admiral had ſent a frigate before him—that the frigate or her barge had been up to the city—that Sir Henry Clinton had conferred with the Commander—and immediately 2000 hogſheads of water had been filled and ſhipped. —And that, upon the appearance of the French fleet near Rhode-Iſland, the enemy ſet fire to the King Fiſher ſloop of war, and two of their gallies, which were abandoned and entirely conſumed—that ſome regiments which had been ſtationed on the Connecticut ſide, had been drawn into the garriſon at New York, where the Britiſh forces were 9000 ſtrong ——and that, when the Marquis de la Fayette had, joined General Sullivan, an immediate attack would be made upon them.

The ſhip Baſſmarein, drove aſhore upon Morris's Iſland in the Gale of wind on the 10th of laſt month, was, after great labour and expence, got off laſt Monday.

The moſt execrable outrages have been lately committed, by a deſperate handitti, who have aſſumed the name of the Eaſt-Florida ſcout, and are harboured between the forks of Ediſto river, they plunder houſes, ſteal horſes, abuſe women, tie and whip men, and cut their ears off.

Yeſterday John M'Call, Eſq; was, by the legiſlature duly elected one of the Commiſſioners of the Treaſury of this State, in the room of William Gibbes, Eſq; who had reſigned, and taken his ſeat in the General Aſſembly, as a member of St. John's pariſh in Colleton county.

Yeſterday evening a ſhip was ſeen off Stono under her three top ſails, ſtanding in, the wind to the weſtward of north. This morning ſhe was again ſeen ſtanding to the eaſtward — which has not a friendly appearance.

THOMAS STRETTON, Executor.

RUN away from the subscriber at the Horse-shoe, a young negro fellow named JEMMY: He is about eighteen or twenty years old, has a small scar on his jaw, is well known in Charlestown, and by the officers and soldiers of the 1st regiment, and also in the country, as he was the subscriber's waiting man.—He is supposed to be harboured in Charlestown, as has been frequently times there, and particularly on board a French ship; he is an artful sensible fellow, can shave and dress hair very well, and it is probable may attempt to pass for a free man. I will give twenty pounds currency with all reasonable charges, to any Person that will deliver him to me at the Horse shoe aforesaid, or to the Warden of the Workhouse in Charlestown, and one hundred pounds to any that can prove he is harboured by a white person, and twenty pounds if by a free negro, mulatto or slave, to be paid on conviction.——All masters of vessels are particularly cautioned not to harbour, conceal, or carry him off the State, as they may depend on being prosecuted to the utmost rigour of the law. CHARLES CLIFFORD.

WAnted to purchase, a Complete Cook, either woman or a fellow.——Apply to the printers.
